ABOUT ONE STOP

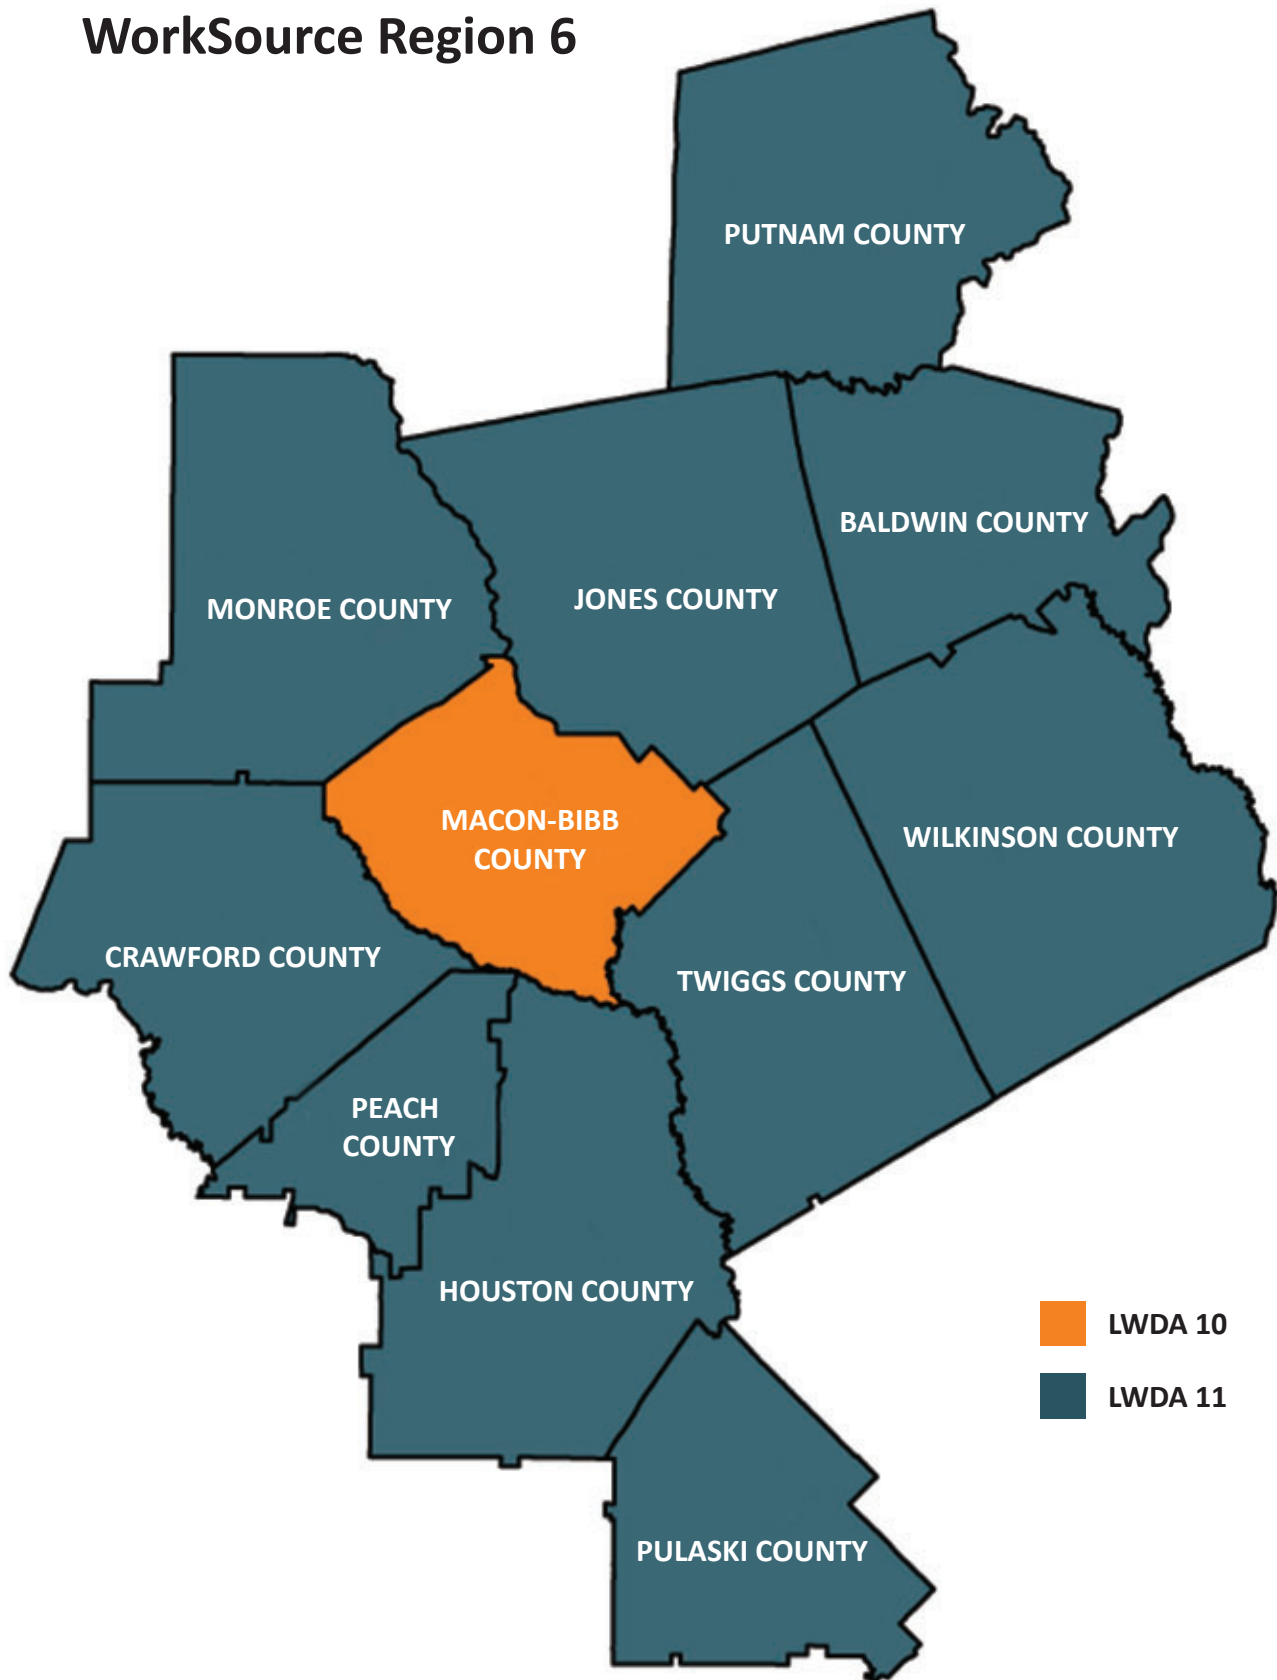

WorkSource Middle Georgia and WorkSource Macon-Bibb (Region 6) utilize Georgia Department of Labor Career Centers to deliver One-Stop Services to job seekers and employers. Because the workforce continues to change, federal law mandates that programs and strategies be developed and implemented to help job seekers navigate through the local workforce delivery system. Stakeholders from economic development, community colleges, and community-based organizations have collaborated to create this One-Stop Resource Guide to improve the service delivery for a stronger, more revitalized community.

Job seekers often find themselves dealing with many options and challenges in their job search: the change in the structure of the job search, increased telecommuting or work-at-home opportunities, and the change in technology. These changes are significant in that they create new opportunities that further education, create new transferrable skillsets, and/or create a new and meaningful career path. Regardless of the reason, this guide is for you.

The One-Stop Resource Guide provides resources for the laid-off worker, the long-term unemployed, and those who need help getting into the workforce. This directory provides individuals with connections to experienced professionals in the community to address their needs and also provides a mixture of information that focuses on training and education; self-sufficiency; basic human needs; physical and mental health; work initiatives; support for seniors and the disabled; support for children, youth, and families; volunteer opportunities in the community, and a range of other services that are available to the job seeker. The more job seekers know about the range of services available, the easier it is for them to gain full-time employment, thus effectively contributing to the economy.

Considerable time and effort have gone into the creation of this One-Stop Resource Guide, but as Workforce Development continues to foster new relationships in the community, new information and updates will be added.
